Horner says that the colored man accosted him on the road and asked for a match. He put his hand in his pocket for that purpose and when he got the match he was peering into the barrel of a pistol. HUNS TO LEAVE BELGIUN

Lansing Makes Public Information That Enemy is Ready to Retire.

Germany has begun the evacuation of Belgium.

Official information showing the preparatory moves already under way was received by the State Department yesterday afternoon. It was made public by Secretary of State Lansing.

The retirement, it is believed, may shortly include the German forces now in Northern France. So desperate is Germany's plight at the present time that officials here would not be surprised to see a general retreat to the Rhine, coupled with another peace plea from the new ministry, which is expected to be responsible to the Reichstag.

The information to the State Department is to the effect that all rolling stock, hospitals, postoffices, storage and supplies have been transferred from the Fourth army district in Belgium to the general government.

In addition all civilian authorities have been recalled to Germany and regulations pertaining to the maritime districts have been made more severe—an indication, officials assume, that measures have been taken to evacuate the submarine bases. At Antwerp the naval staff, commanded by Gohenschen, is preparing to leave.

All German reserves in Belgium have been ordered to the front, apparently to assist in the transfer of munitions, food and material to points in the rear.

350 DIE IN WRECK

London, Oct. 3.—Three hundred and fifty persons have been killed, it is feared, in a railway accident north of Malmo, Sweden, says an Exchange, Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen, today. Fifty children who were returning to Stockholm from the country are among the dead.

The railway line had been washed out at this point by several days of rain and a local passenger train with 24 cars, carrying 1,000 passengers, ran into the break. Several coaches were smashed and subsequently caught fire.

RICHMOND THEATER

If you were a pretty and neglected young wife what would you do if a middle-aged and designing widow took advantage of your husband's interest in his work to try to win him from you? This is the problem that forms the basis for a delightful comedy in "Sauce for the Goose," the new Select Picture in which Lewis J. Selznick presents Constance Talmadge which will be shown at the Richmond Theatre tonight.

Constance Talmadge is a comedienne who knows the value of a sure light touch in spontaneous fun-making, and she more than fulfills the hopes and expectations of her many admirers by her delightful interpretation of Kitty Constable in this play.

The story is from the successful play by Geraldine Bonner and Hutcheson Boyd, adapted by Julia Crawford Ivers. The theme of the neglected wife and the "other woman" is old, but the handling of it in this picture is new.

SPREAD OF INFLUENZA

Commissioners of District of Columbia Taking Precautions Against Malady.

CUT GASH IN HUN'S LINE

British Penetrate Eight Miles, Threatening Terrible Disaster to the Invaders.

London, Oct. 3.—The Germans are retreating on the 20-mile front between Armentiers and Lens, Field Marshal Haig announced today. They are evacuating highly organized positions which they had held since the beginning of the trench warfare.

The retirement already has reached a maximum depth of two miles, and the British advance is continuing.

"Progress made by the allied offensives in Flanders and before Cambrai and St. Quentin, combined with the losses incurred by his troops in their endeavors to resist the successful allied attacks, has compelled the enemy to undertake an extensive withdrawal," the statement said.

"The retirement was not unexpected. We already have reached the general line of Cite St. August, Douvrin, east of La Bassee, east of Aubers and west of Bois Grenier. The advance continues.

"Yesterday evening the enemy attacked north of Cambrai. He was repulsed, leaving prisoners.

"This morning we renewed our attacks north of St. Quentin."

London, Oct. 3.—A gash nearly eight miles wide was cut into the Hindenburg line between Le Catelet and the region east of St. Quentin by the British yesterday. For several hours terrible disaster threatened the Germans. Their main line of resistance had been breached between Fonscare, five miles northeast of St. Quentin, and Beaurevoir, nearly three miles east of Le Catelet. Through this breach Haig's forces threatened to pour into the rear and force a cave-in of the whole German Western front.

Then, toward noon, Ludendorff, aware that it was one of the decisive hours of the war, gave the order for one of those old-time massed counter assaults, in which human life counts for naught, where the only thing that matters is to fill the gap, even if it must be filled by corpses.

Whether the gap was definitely filled is not yet certain But the reckless slaughter did succeed in keeping the British from pouring through.

The British, Field Marshal Haig admitted last night, were pressed back from Sequehart, which lies on the southeastern part of the line breached; five miles and a half northeast of St. Quentin.

But the desperate eleventh-hour measure cost Ludendorff more than the mountains of dead piled up in the temporarily stopped gap. In the bloody counter thrust he had to use up every ounce of flesh available in that sector, and as the very order for the attack was given, he had to cast anxious glances up and down the far-flung, wabbling German front for men to take the places of those offered to the British fire.

Soon afterward his decision became manifest. All the way between the Meuse and the North Sea there was but one sector that had not been ripped to pieces in the last few weeks—the one between Armentieres and Lens. On that seventeen-mile-front lay his only hope for re-enforcements.

The answer is contained in Haig's night report:

"The Germans are withdrawing on a wide front south and north of La Bassee Canal."

This means that Vimy Ridge, that formidable, natural bastion, for which so many thousands of Teutons and Britishers have died, is to be abandoned, probably without fighting, as was Mount Kemmel and Passchendaele Ridge. It means a saving of untold casualties for the allies.

FOND OF MATRIMONY

Temporary Resident of This City Faces Two Wives in Court—Believed That He Has a String of Them Scattered About the Country.

Howard Lee Jones, who figures below, is believed to be the man of that name who cut quite a swath in this city recently, while he was in the employ of a large manufacturing concern here. Jones sometimes drove a large touring car and at other times rode a magnificient horse that attracted much attention. The dispatch from New York follows:

With two women claiming him as husband and three others alleged to have married him in cities scattered throughout the country, Howard Lee Jones, a mechanical engineer, who is said to have held an official position at New Orleans with the Emergency Fleet Corporation, has been indicted here on a charge of bigamy.

Jones, who claims Alexandria, Va., as his home, was arrested last Friday at Wilmington, Del., where he was spending a honeymoon with Ethel Canney Crumb, of New Orleans. Miss Crumb, who says she wedded the prisoner last month, and Mae Marguerite Maxwell, of Cleveland, who charges that he took her as his wife in September, 1917, accused him before the grand jury.

Jones, according to Miss Crumb, was a member of the New Orleans Country Club and moved in the best circles in the Louisiana city. Elsewhere, too, he was socially prominent, the women testified, relating his claims of membership in a country club at Los Angeles and the Whitehall Club in New York. He told Miss Maxwell, she declared, that he was a son of William B. Jones, an iron manufacturer of Streator, Ill., and was educated at the University of Wisconsin. She is 18 years old, Jones, thirty-three when she married him, the witness said.

The district attorney states that Jones has had at least five wives.

TURKEY MAKES ADVANCES

Approaches Come Through Financial Channels And Are Considered By British Cabinet.

London, Oct. 3.—Turkey has made further indirect approaches to the Allies through financial channels which are being considered by the British War Cabinet, the Standard says it learns on good authority. Important developments, the newspaper adds, are expected.

The Allied Governments have decided formally to recognize the belligerent status of the Arab forces fighting as auxiliaries with the Allies against the common enemy in Palestine and Syra.

Damascus, the capital of Syria, was occupied by General Allenby's forces on Tuesday morning according to an official statement issued by the British War Office.

More than 7,000 Turks were taken prisoner when General Allenby's forces occupied Damascus, the War Office announced last night.

Damascus is the Turkish base in Syria and Palestine and its fall probably means the end of all Turkish resistance to General Allenby in Palestine and Syria. The ancient city is the junction point of railroads leading to the port of Beirut and Aleppo, 180 miles northeast.

Damascus is the capital of the Vilayet of Syria, and has a population of about 150,000. It is one of the holy cities of the Mohamedans, and the Arabs regard it as one of the four paradises on earth.

The capture of Damascus marks an advance of 130 miles by General Allenby's forces since September 20, the day he launched his victorious attack north of Jerusalem. In that time the British have captured more than 50,000 prisoners, destroyed at least three Turkish armies and driven the enemy from Palestine and a great part of Syria.

SCHOOLS CLOSED TODAY

Owing to Epidemic of Spanish Influenza Pupils Were Dismissed at 10 A. M.—Will Not Reopen Until Plague Subsides—Action of Health Department a Precautionary Measure.

Owing to the spread of Spanish influenza in this city and as a precautionary measure the public schools of the city were closed at 10 o'clock this morning by order of the health department, Dr. E. A. Gorman, city health officer, until the epidemic subsides.

Many children already were away from the schools owing to the plague which has its victims both old and young in every section of the city.

The closing of the schools at the foregoing hour released a total of 2?? pupils in the five schools, three being for white children and two for colored

The question of closing the schools as a precautionary measure to prevent the spread of the disease was taken after due deliberation and is in line with the policy being pursued by many other cities throughout the country where the epidemic exists.

Capt. W. H. Sweeney, superintendent of schools, stated this morning that just as soon as the epidemic subsides the schools will be reopened for studies.

Health Officer Gorman stated today that the action was taken simply as a precautionary measure. He advises that all persons attacked with the disease at once see their physician.

THE UNWELCOME VISITOR

he Angel of Death has intruded self into several Alexandria houseds during the past twenty-four rs. The victim in each case was a ng man and of the most represnve class of our community. We ress our sincere sympathy to se whose homes are now in sorrow, realizing that we can say nothing present, which can in any way guild se terrible afflictions. Time only n blunt the edge of the poignant row under which relatives and ends who have given up loved ones e suffering.

The serious menace to health has read over most of the continent d the authorities are doing every-ing possible to stay the hand of the adly scourge. In some cases several embers of households have been ostrated and anxious ones are per-rming vigils under great strain, hile the few doctors remaining in r midst are overworked.

The epidemic which is now attack-g young and old alike is the usual companiment of war. The dark cloud hich has enveloped the planet for ur years or more at present pre-nts a faint silver lining. May it be-me brighter and bring speedy ref to a war-weary.

PEACE HEARS THE RUSTLE OF A WING.

ace hears a voice afar hispering her name again every glistening star light of joy for men eams through the smoke of war!
ark! she is at the door, r trailing robes are bright, nd the great heart of war robs in a dream of fright! er wings are being spread n her eternal flight bove the fields of dead, nd over their sacrifice e looks with pitying eyes, ispersing night!

While there may be much bloodshed et in store for the world, the steady erman losses and retirements sure-indicate that the war is burning t, and while we are not of the op-mist genus which believes peace will awn upon the world by Christmas, though we sincerely hope it may, here are signs which portend that he curtain has been raised upon the st act of the fearful tragedy.

Germany is beaten—there can be o doubt of that. The Huns are prearing to leave Belgium as well as orthern France, while their submа-ne bases upon the North Sea will lso be given up.

Bulgaria has left the Central Pow-rs, Turkey is preparing to follow her nd, with Austria-Hungary, also overnxious to desert the sinking ships.

The military situation today is en-ouraging in every aspect.

The German grip on Northern rance and Belgium has been defi-itely broken. Even the most cau-ous military observers in Washing-n agree that the Hindenburg line as disintegrating and army officers nter their whole attention on the ef-rts of the German leaders to extri-te their armies without a crushing isaster.

Outflanked in Belgium and in the hampagne, the great German zone f defensive works, known as the indenburg line, already was becomg untenable when Field Marshal aig's men smashed through it yesrday just north of St. Quentin. The mediate investment of the city by rench troops and the swift widening f the breach northward, coupled with e continued rapid progress of Bel-um, it is thought, may possibly up-t the whole German scheme of rerement which already has begun on e Rheims front.

British penetration of the line, it s said, may furnish Marshal Foch th a means to embarrass the German retreat, always with the possibility of precipitating a veritable rout.

Ringed by a wall of victorious enemies over the whole front from the North Sea to Verdun, the situation of the German is undoubtedly grave.
The drive in Belgium is menacing vital communications on one side, while American and French troops in the Champagne are surging forward toward equally vital supply lines on the other. The battle line is assuming the shape of a vast trap thrusting its jaws out to engulf the German armies.

The German leaders have seen their danger. Official reports to the State Department indicate that evacuation of the submarine bases on the Belgian coast was imminent. There also was conclusive evidence that the evacuation of the lines before Rheims is well under way. The question uppermost in the minds of army officers is whether the German high command has acted in time.

HUNS AND CARTHAGINIANS

During the present war comparisons between Fabius, the Roman General, and Hannibal, the Carthaginian, have been made. Plutarch has given us a history of the invasion of Italy for the purpose of obliterating the Roman Empire and the eventual fading of Hanibal's dream.

Twenty-one hundred years ago Hannibal left the shores of Africa en route for Rome. He led a devoted and enthusiastic army. He was one one of the greatest captains the world has ever known, and he has always been considered by military experts from this time to this as a strategist without an equal. His avowed object was the capture and destruction of Rome and the obliteration of its government and its power.

The Romans were not in fine condition at that period. They had troubles within and troubles without. They had pacifists and dissenters; they had half-hearted and despondent elements; they had traitors. The conscript fathers even had in their midst the doubtful and the timid. But the great heart of the Roman people beat true and strong. Confidence in the outcome and the determination to shape that outcome ran like a thread of gold through the whole fibre of the Roman commonwealth.

Hannibal did not fix any date when he would take his breakfast or his dinner in Rome. He only said he was going there, and he surely did come pretty close to it. He remained in Italy for 15 years and on one occasion he had his army within three miles of Rome, which is much nearer than Von Hindenburg has ever gotten to Paris. He fought many battles and some sanguinary ones. He was cruel and treacherous, but it is not known that he warred upon women and children or upon the wounded.

All through that 15 years the Romans held their faith. They fought steadily and relentlessly, and they never faltered in their resolve to drive him from their boundaries and mete out to him condign punishment. They drove him out and they pursued them from country to country until to escape their vengeance he took poison from his own hands.

The German barbarian invaders, many times more cruel and diabolic than Hannibal, have polluted the soil of Belgium and France for four years, not 15. In God's mercy, it looks as if they were now like Hannibal, on the march homeward.

SENSITIVE THERMOMETER

Stocks were irregular in New York yesterday as one class after another was subjected to the acid test of peace news. Wall Street believes the remarkable victories being recorded daily mean peace in a few months and is not waiting for the last act.
So far as yesterday's market means anything, it proved that the oils, motors and tobacco are at the head of the peace stock list. There was much difference of opinion regarding U. S.
Steel, but the trading was decidedly against such stocks as Bethlehem and companies that have large capital in plants useful for war work only. Russian bonds were up, as was also German and Austrian exchange in Switzerland, while neutral exchange was weak. Cotton was irregular and corn was weak. Panic was reported in German munition shares in Berlin.

HUN DOG AND SHOTGUN

Germany's protest against the use of shotguns affects us much as a wolf's protest against sheep dogs might affect a shepherd, or a maneating tiger's protest against traps.
A wild-beast government seriously asks not to be treated as a wild beast.
The government that introduced poison gas and flame that burn men's flesh off the bones; that drowns women and children at sea; that slaughters the innocent by aerial bombardments; that attacks hospitals and kills the wounded, as well as nurses and doctors; that tears women and men from their homes and inflicts upon them a worse fate than death, is shocked by the use of shotguns, and appeals to The Hague code, which it has flouted and violated at every turn.

The shotgun is a mighty mild answer to all this. Every hound dog yelps when he is peppered with shot.
And the Hun dog is no exception.
But we will make him howl louder than this before we are through with him. If he dares to carry out his threat of reprisals, no power on earth will stay the vengeance of the American soldiers when they enter Germany.—Baltimore Sun.

BEGINNING OF THE END.

It is difficult to exaggerate the importance of Bulgaria's surrender. If, as we have a right to assume, she has withdrawn from the war on the terms laid down by the Allies, her withdrawal means the beginning of the end. And this not so much because of her military strength—although her defection is equivalent to the capture of an army of 500,000 men—but because her retirement opens up the roads to both Turkey and Austria, and because it is an evidence that Germany's cause seems doomed outside of Germany.

Turkey became a member of the German-Austrian partnership largely from fear of Russia. But the menacing Russia of the Czar is dead, and Turkey has more to hope now from Allied grace than from Teutonic success. She can expect no quarter as a government, she must fight to the death, unless she speedily follows Bulgaria's example. If she does, Germany will be menaced front and rear, and Austria will feel the sword in her own vitals.

Can Austria in such a case keep down her insurgent multitudes? In a few months may not she also throw herself on the mercy of the Allied nations? Will not the reaction to sanity in Russia and the revulsion against German tyranny be immensely quickened by the certainty that Germany's hour of defeat is about to strike?

Germany cannot fight us and fight her former allies at one and the same time. Her elaborate edifice of empire is falling about her ears. Bulgaria was but an outpost, but it was an outpost essential to Germany's safety.
Before long she will be segregated and surrounded by a wall of iron and flame.
Then it will be only a question of surrender for her, too.

Germany has conducted the war on the principle of elimination. She eliminated Serbia, Roumania and Russia, and she has been attempting to eliminate Italy and France. Now the tables are turned on her, and we will begin to do the eliminating, until she is left alone.

Germany will fight desperately until she can fight no longer, but she is getting close to her last ditch. Bulgaria is helping to make the world safe for democracy, unsafe for Prussianism. —Baltimore Sun.

NEWS OF THE DAY

Four German torpedo boats, whose crews mutinied and attempted to take them out of harbor during August, were pursued by cruisers and sunk, according to information received in Copenhagen. The occurrence is said to have been confirmed by the washing ashore of 160 bodies. Thirty-six German sailors were executed at Kiel recently as the result of a mutiny against submarine duty, it is reported.
Several mutinies occurred among German and Austrian soldiers in the Ukraine during September. At Kherhof 6,000 Austrians are reported to have refused to go to the west front.

JUNK THE KAISER

The war has opened poetic veins in America. The following is the production of James E. North, and appears in a Baltimore paper:

There's only one thing to be done To stop this awful war, There's only one thing we can do To heal the nation's sore;
And just as soon as it is done
The Germans will be wiser, And that is—start and "do it now"
And junk the d— old Kaiser.

Kaiser Bill is an awful pill For anyone to swallow;
The dirty Hun is on the bum, In filth we're made to wallow;
But when the Yankees charge Berlin,
The Prussians will be wiser; We'll take the Hohenzollern bunch And junk them with the Kaiser.

The Kaiser has upset the world, And bled the nations white;
The laughing gas he turned on us Until he made us fight.
The Yankees have them on the run And yet they're none the wiser, But when they look the scrap heap o'er They'll find we've junked the Kaiser.

KAISER'S DREAMS FADING

Sergt. F. P. Murray, Company C, Fourteenth Battalion at Curtis Bay, Md. contributes the following to a Baltimore paper:

The Kaiser's throne is shaking,
His soldiers they are shaking The German people waking To the fact that Yanks are there.

He said that we were bluffin', But we're going to lick the stuffin' Out of one first-class ruffan He will know our boys are there.

When the Yankees go a-gunning The Germans start a-running And forget about their Hunning Just because our boys are there.

The Austrians are crying, Their hopes have gone a-flying, They see their goose a-frying Since our boys went over there.

There'll be no Paris dinner For that old reckless sinner; Every day he's getting thinner And his bones will soon be bare.

Yes, we'll finish up the Kaiser,
The world-greedy miser, But he won't be any wiser When it's over, over there.

For we are going to post him Where the divil he can roast him, Then turn him o'er and toast him When he arrives down there.

Cholera has broken out in Berlin, according to advices received here.
There have been seven cases, of which six were fatal.

The American government, in reply to Germany's threat to execute American prisoners of war found in possession of shotguns, gives notice that if Germany carries out any such threat suitable reprisals will be taken. "If the German government should carry out its threat in a single instance," says Secretary Lansing's reply, "it will be the right and duty of the United States to make such reprisals as will best protect the American forces, and notice is hereby given of the intention of the government of the United States to make such reprisals."

NEWS OF THE DAY

China is going to be well represented in America's 4th Liberty Loan. Subscriptions in Shanghai at the end of the second day of the drive amounted to $250,000. Newspapers, chambers of commerce and other civic organizations are promoting the sale of the bonds with the greatest enthusiasm and the advertising campaign is the most extensive in the history of the nation. In a leading editorial urging generous subscriptions, the Eastern Times says: "Since China is sharing in the advantages of American leadership the Chinese should share the dangers."

A nonstop flight from Dayton, Ohio, to Washington in a De Haviland, 9, equipped with a Liberty motor—a distance of approximately 430 miles—is the record made yesterday by a civilian pilot of the Bureau of Aircraft Production. The time of actual flight from a point over Dayton to a point over the National Capital was two hours and fifty minutes, or at the rate of about 143 miles an hour. It requires the fastest train on the Pennsylvania Railroad about sixteen and one-half hours to make the same trip.

Twenty-nine German airplanes were brought down by the British Tuesday, the war office announces. The British lost fifteen machines. Twenty-nine tons of bombs were dropped on various German targets.

Your Winter's Coal Supply

On account of rulings of the U. S. Fuel Administration, it seems doubtful if Virginia will receive sufficient anthracite coal to supply the demands. If present rulings are maintained, this shortage will be very great in Alexandria and we earnestly advise our customers to put in a reasonable amount of bituminous coal as a safeguard against a coal shortage next winter.

We are now securing some very fine bituminous coal which we believe will work in all characters of coal burners but the Latrobe stoves.

RETREATING GERMANS

Belgian And French Cities May Escape Torch of Invaders.

If Germany heeds the warning of the allies the cities of Bruges, Ghent, Brussels, Antwerp and Charleroi, all in Belgium, together with Lille, Charleville, St. Amand and Roubaix in France will be spared from the ravages of a retreating foe.

The State Department received yesterday an excerpt from the Frankfurter Zeitung, of September 29, showing the condition of public opinion in Germany yesterday. It says:

"What a change has taken place in the few weeks that have intervened since that time when it seemed that our armies had reached their goal of shattering the enemy armies and forcing peace. There is unparalled tragedy in the present situation. A real crisis has not set in. It is the first strategic crisis for years that turns against us. We are on the defensive; the old doctrine that attack is the best means of defense no longer applies in the new epoch in which we are living. The moral revolution which is transpiring in Prussian Germany respects neither doctrines nor theories of war.

"The defense of our country means the defense of that mentality which alone can enable our people to remain strong and united until the last hour. This idea will unite our warriors and the whole German people in unbending resistance until the enemy awakens from the imperialistic intoxication which the unexpected victory after gravest danger has caused him. We must resist until the new balance of power is established and force the enemy to recognize that the advantages which he might attain in the most favorable event cannot compensate for the tremendous sacrifice which a continuation of attempts to break through would necessitate.

"In its time of sore trial the entente was sustained by hope of American help, but we have no help but our own strength, and must be inspired by the idea of unalterable necessity of the magnitude of danger and of the terrible burden of historic responsibility. In this hour of destiny we simply must go on or we are lost."

Then, in the face of the despair already expressed, the journal concludes with this final attempt to restore the failing morale of the people:

"Great battles in France are taking a course favorable to us despite the unheard of effort against us. The enemy has only obtained a minimum of advantage; further unsuccessful attempts will be bound to have a favorable effect on the military situation of the central powers."
